

Mr. Messingkop, 506 Bloomfield St., Hoboken, stated that he was quite certain that May Ray was arrested by Weinthal for having stolen property in her possession and that Freese Frances bailed her out for $500. James

James Verbeyst, cigar manufacturer, 602 First St., Hoboken, remembers a man and woman named Ray who lived in the house on the first floor left with a couple named Williams. He recalls that Mrs. Ray played the panjo and Mr. Ray the piano and known to be music hall singers and made a lot of noise in their apartment. They were known to have moved to this address from Holiday Street, Jersey City. G.T.P. 9/12/26

Edward Betsworth, 5th St. & Broadway, Bayonne, until a few years ago ran a candy store at the corner. Stated he knew Mrs. Gibson as Mrs. Easton when she conducted a candy store at 187 Broadway, Bayonne. About 1907 he employed a young girl for a few days in his store who told him she had worked for Mrs. Easton in her store. When she was there two days a man came in and had a talk with Mrs. Easton, then Mrs. Easton came over to the girl and asked her to go into the back room with the man. The girl refused, and so later dismissed. Betsworth said he often heard this woman ran a disorderly house and that Conroy (deceased), a plumber at 7th St. & Broadway, confirmed this.
